GAME #2

Vs

15 APRIL, 2023 | vs BARNSTONEWORTH | FROST RESERVE 3

With no injuries from Round One, nor any other mishaps over the Easter break, the old boys were ready for Round Two. Tooley wasn't booked out with weddings, parties, or anything, so was set to make his season debut; and Andy was ready to test that sprained ankle, though jarring his foot in the warm-up because he put his orthotics over his insoles wasn't his finest moment. Clive unfortunately remains out with a heart condition, his surgeon telling him to stop watching Liverpool games; and goalie Rob was out with work commitments, just lucky it wasn't the Grand Final this time mate. So, we had sixteen in the books though Mikey D wouldn't arrive until half time. There was a late scare with Chad almost blinding himself from applying too much sunscreen to his bald head, and Dean was in a panic that he couldn't find his shorts… until he realised, he was wearing them.

Barnstoneworth gave us a few early scares and if it weren't for Brad's last-ditch heroics of pursuing a chip shot over Nige – who kindly wore the gloves today – and stopping the ball in the nick of time, well we would've been trailing early. Beyond that, the closest they came was a shot on target that Nige tapped over the crossbar. Speaking of close, well Wyoming was far from it with their shots in the first half. Fitzy looked like he was on track with a strong run and lined it up, only for it to veer wide. Dean's shots lacked the erm, sting but the trajectory was lowering, erm, more, on each attempt. Ashton looked a chance a couple of times; McGarvey wasn't getting the accurate service that was on song last game; and Luca toe punting from corner kicks whilst circling around from the outside of the corner flag, well what's that about?

Mikey D's arrival in the second half saw the stalemate finally broken. Not because he had anything to do with it, he just arrived at the ground at that time. Some good ol' fashioned quick passing on the edge of the box saw the ball go from Fitzy to McGarvey to Dean and back to McGarvey for the shot. Their keeper thought he had done enough with the block, but Scotty James was perfectly positioned for the rebound, drilling it in. McGarvey didn't have to wait too long for a goal of his own courtesy of some quality service from Ashton through the middle. As he put it away, McG declared "that's a goal". Not sure who he was trying to convince. Having saved a goal in the first half and putting some yards in on the right midfield in the second, the tenacity of Brad saw him assist the third goal. After Andy's heavy cross that sailed from the left flank to the right, Brad retrieved it and sent it into the goalmouth where Luca was on hand, or foot thankfully in this case, to seal the win with the third goal. Was he offside, hmm, I'll just remain quiet about that. Barnstoneworth weren't as vocal in appealing this as when they were telling the ref at one point to stop the game when they realised, they only had ten men on the field… "well bring another player on" said the ref, Duh! In their defense, its not always easy to find each other when you're wearing Where's Wally jerseys.

So, another commanding win for the boys in yellow. A solid second half made up for a lackluster first. Whilst Brad deservedly picked up MVP for the day, Stitty and Ashton were also rewarded with votes for their tireless work in the middle. Boz mixed it up a bit by having some runs through the midfield and whilst Nige didn't have to do much between the sticks in the second half, he gladly kept a clean sheet. None of those ten-minute sin bins for this game but a couple of Tigers players copped fines. Mikey D, the gear steward for the team, left the game balls after the game, his mind too focused on an awaiting sausage sizzle; and Scotty left his boots and shin pads at the ground. Sure, they were responsible for the winning goal of today's game, but it seems 45BC football just doesn't have the allure from anyone on eBay to make a bid, and no charity companies were interested… so Scotty, you can have your boots back.
